

Annual Report

BETH ISRAEL HOSPITAL
BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

FOR THE YEAR

Report of the President

THE past year at the hospital was featured by a full use of the rooms and beds up to the extent of capacity. The existence at all times of a waiting list of urgent and important cases has made us realize more and more that an expansion of our facilities is very urgently needed as soon as possible. Provision to meet this problem as well as the critical problem of maternity needs is being planned as this is being written.

Since the war continued for a good part of the year, all the war-time difficulties of limited nursing facilities and lack of other personnel in many departments has persisted. The ending of the war up to this time has not yet had enough influence in correcting this situation.

The year was marked also by growing costs of operation which apparently are reaching up to a new and a much higher plateau, considerably in excess of pre-war costs. Apparently it will be necessary to plan to meet the costs of operation on this new higher level on a long term basis. While the Associated Jewish Philanthropies has increased its budgetary allotment from year to year, the limit of expectation from this source has nearly been reached. Income from greater endowment funds will become increasingly important as time goes on.

During the past year the hospital was freed of capital indebtedness by the paying off of the balance of its mortgage indebtedness. It was a long hard road, but the end of debt was finally achieved.

The war's end has brought problems of new planning of research and teaching programs with Harvard and Tufts Medical Schools. Moreover, it has become necessary to make provision for the returning veterans who require refresher courses, or new advanced training courses. The Beth Israel Hospital is doing its part in making sure that it will fulfill the function of a scientifically conducted institution in this post-war era.

At this time I most regretfully report the passing during the year of Albert A. Ginzberg, past president of Beth Israel Hospital, and Joseph Finberg of Attleboro, Beth Israel's greatest benefactor. Beth Israel Hospital will always remember the contributions of these two noble men toward its welfare.

CASPER M. GROSBERG, President.

Report of the Executive Director

THE submission to the Board of Trustees of the Beth Israel Hospital of my seventeenth annual report presents the happy opportunity to comment with satisfaction on the ending of the great struggle which has engulfed the world in recent years. We welcome with pleasure the returning members of our Staff who are beginning to come back to us from all over the world.

The effects of this devastating tragedy have reached into every hospital in America. The lack of both professional and non-professional personnel, the shortage of supplies and essential equipment, the speeding up of the educational program carried on in teaching hospitals, have been but some of the common problems with which we have been faced. Today we are privileged to join in the hope that the onward march of human progress, impeded by the war, may be resumed again, with resulting benefit to the people of the world.

We owe much to those who left everything behind in order to serve their country: home, family and opportunity. We are indebted, too, to those who carried on at home. Theirs was no easy task, compelled as they were to bridge the wide gap created by the absence of those who joined the varied branches of our armed forces. It is hard to find words which will fittingly describe the total value of the contributions made by civilian hospitals in recent years and the enormity of the task with which they have been confronted. To have met the challenge and rendered service during the past year to the largest number of patients ever admitted to the hospitals of the country is a tribute to all who have made this possible. Good friends of the Beth Israel Hospital will always be grateful to those who have made the continuance of these services available.

Patient Care

The demand for hospital beds during the past four years has been the greatest in our history and our waiting list of those seeking admission increases every day. There is only one obvious solution to this problem; namely, the creation of enlarged facilities, and we are pleased to point out that plans for such necessary expansion are well under way. There were admitted during the past year a total of 6,260 patients who spent 68,703 patient days within the walls of our institution. Of this number approximately 42 per cent occupied ward beds, 40 per cent semi-private accommodations, and about 18 per cent private rooms.

Outpatient Care

Seven thousand six hundred and thirty-six individual patients, of whom 2,348 came to the Outpatient Department for the first time, made a total of 42,403 visits during the past twelve months. Availability of jobs with consequent economic improvement in general conditions played a part in the reduction of outpatient attendance as compared with the period preceding the World War. While, from the social approach, we should like this condition to continue, it is only reasonable to expect an economic change in the future which will result in larger outpatient attendance.

The out-patient department meets its obligation to those who come to us for care.

In the past year, and under the direction of Dr. Herbert Margolis, a special dental study of foster home children of the Jewish Child Welfare Association has been undertaken. In addition to this, a long term study of the dental problems of pre-school children has been instituted. Dentists especially interested in the problem of children's dentistry have been appointed to carry out these projects.

Another innovation which can be considered progressive in nature has been the appointment of a full-time health educator to serve in the hospital, and attached to the Food Clinic. This will present an opportunity to evaluate the importance of health education as a component function of a progressive outpatient department and hospital concerned with the promotion of health and the prevention of disease.

Stressing the relationship of proper diet to health.

The report of the Outpatient Director urges consideration of the expansion of the Outpatient Department to provide needed additional space for the Dental Clinic, Psychiatry Clinic and a Central Record Room, as well as interviewing facilities for the members of the Social Service Department. He also points out the urgent need for an increase in the volunteer staff which has been depleted during the war because of the participation of many of our former volunteers in the many war efforts at the local level.

The Nurse and the Patient

The report for the year presented by Miss Gilmore, our Superintendent of Nurses and Principal of the School of Nursing, presents some very interesting facts. Our student body includes a total of 145, of which group 126 are enrolled as members of the United States Cadet Nurse Corps.

It is pleasing to report that a total of 91 of our graduates are with the armed forces.

Three new positions have been created during the past year. These include a graduate who has assumed the duties as an Assistant to the Nursing Arts Instructor and was made necessary in order that adequate teaching might be given to the larger class of students. Another position filled was that of an additional Night Supervisor in order to provide adequate supervision of the activities of those on night duty which have increased because of the larger patient load, and particularly necessary because of student nurse participation in the place of experienced graduates. The third position filled was that of a nurse who is attached to the Blood Bank.

An addition to the Nurses' Residence was opened in January, made possible by a Federal grant under the provision of the Lanham Act. This addition provides housing facilities for 33 nurses.

No department in the Hospital has been faced with greater responsibilities nor has worked with a more depleted force than the Nursing Service, in which group there exists 36 vacancies, a goodly number when compared with the normal number of graduate nurses employed by the Hospital. I join with Miss Gilmore at this moment in a message of appreciation of the services rendered by the volunteers who, as she points out, "have been of immeasurable help during the past twelve months."

Medical Social Service

The Social Service Department has continued to carry on its full program of medical social case work, teaching and studies, despite the great handicaps arising from the various wartime conditions. There were more changes in personnel than ever before in this Department, which has always maintained unusual stability of staff. The rapid turnover of patients in the Hospital, due to the great demand for beds, meant special pressure on the social workers who function in close cooperation with the medical and surgical staffs.

The after care of patients, especially those requiring adequate convalescent and chronic care, has presented obstacles in many instances insurmountable. Many patients on discharge from the Hospital need further medical care and their homes do not provide the necessary facilities required. Housing shortages have resulted in families crowding together. Housekeepers and practical nurses to help with the chronic sick have been virtually unobtainable. Nursing homes have become overcrowded and prohibitive in their charges. These inadequacies in community facilities have a direct influence on the Hospital and its service to patients.

The Hospital in the Field of Education and Research

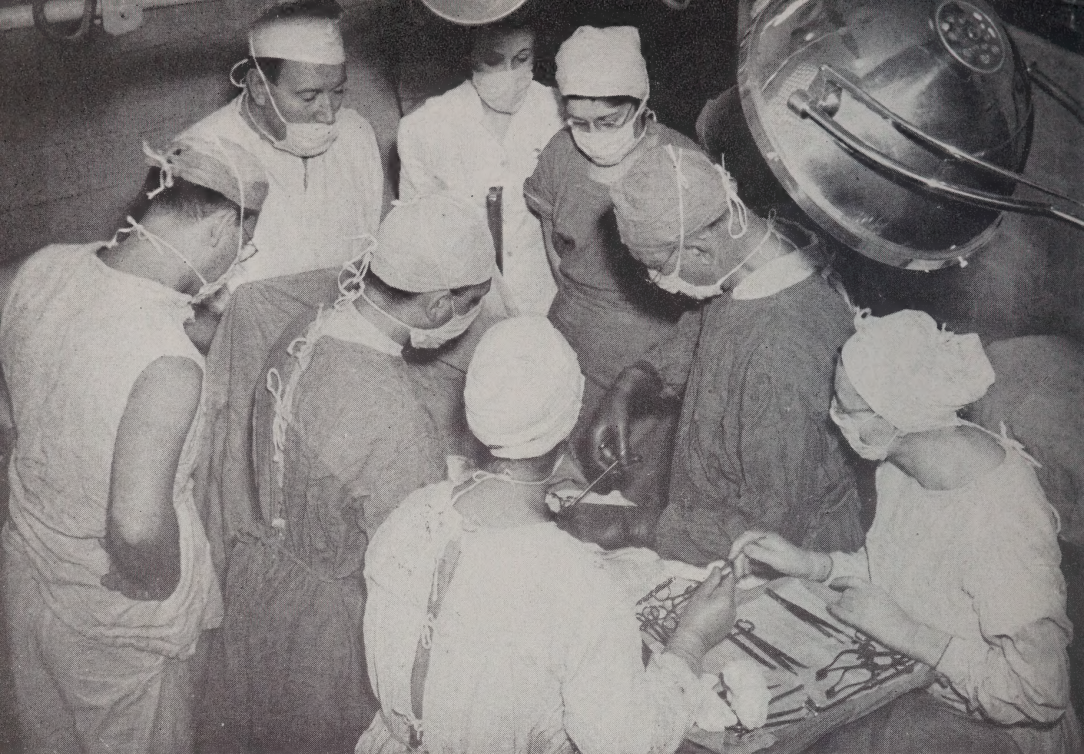

In addition to the care of patients which always must remain the primary function of a hospital, other essential activities carried on have included teaching, research and health education. A depleted medical staff has had to serve more patients than ever. In addition to the increased patient load, those who have had teaching responsibilities have met them well. This serious and most important task was made more difficult during the war by the speeding up of medical education, defined as "an accelerated program," and stimulated by the need for a greater number of physicians by our armed forces. The unremitting efforts of our teaching staffs have made possible the continuance of this responsibility for students of both the Harvard and Tufts Medical Schools. The gradual return of members of our staffs is slowly resulting in a better distribution of the teaching load.

Care of the sick and the advancement of medical knowledge.

Research has been conducted on a very satisfactory level. Among the important projects which have been the concern of the Medical Research Department were studies on protein metabolism, investigation of the coagulation defect in hemophilia, a study designed to evaluate and improve positive pressure oxygen therapy and an inquiry into the mechanism whereby electric shock results in remission of mental disease. In addition, the interest of the Department in coronary artery disease and angina pectoris has been maintained and has resulted in the accumulation of further interesting data.

The Surgical Research Department is in the process of completing an extensive series of studies on traumatic shock. The program will terminate on the first of January next when all government projects in this field will end. Some of the work has been sufficiently fruitful to justify continuation and will be carried on. An important contribution from the Laboratory this year in the field of shock has been the demonstration of the major disturbance derived from serious damage to the liver. The Laboratory, too, has developed a treatment for acute renal failure which promises to have important clinical application. The work on gelatin is proceeding, but no final evaluation of the value of gelatin as an anti-thrombotic agent is yet possible.

The contributions to the literature from both the Medical and Surgical laboratories have been extensive and are listed elsewhere in this report.

Mention has already been made of the teaching activities which the Beth Israel Hospital maintains for medical students, student nurses, those who train for medical social work and the graduate education of interns, residents, members of the staff, and so forth. I desire to point out that approved facilities exist for the training of interns and residents in the field of Roentgenology, as well as in our Clinical and Pathology Laboratories. This also holds true in connection with the training of student dietitians, technicians, etc.

Bringing comfort and cheer to the young.

Operating Income and Expenditures

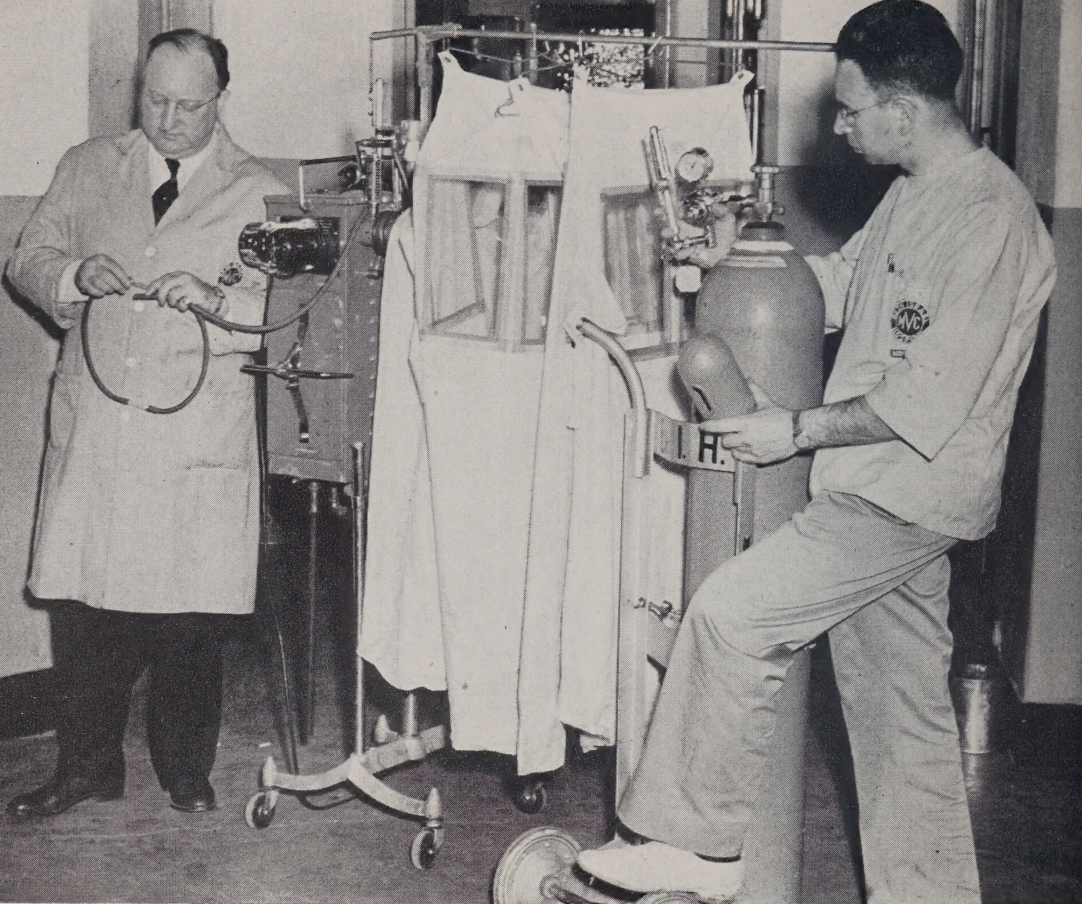

The Operating Income during the past year totaled $605,360.77. This sum represents the largest income from this source for any similar period since the opening of the Hospital.

The expenditures for the care of patients totaled $814,890.91, this representing an increase over the previous fiscal year of over $91,000.00. This increase in expenditure is accounted for by larger salaries totaling an increase of $41,837.00 and the greater cost of supplies of almost $50,000.00 as compared with a year ago.

The Operating Deficit was $209,530.14.

Cost of Free Service Rendered

The value of free service rendered, measured in terms of patient days, as well as of outpatient visits, represented a total cost of $262,490.00. It is important to emphasize that the cost of free care was in excess of the operating deficit of the institution. This is accounted for by the fact that other available funds were applied to make this care possible. In addition to the expenditure for free care, other tangible contributions involving the expenditure of generous funds included those for teaching and for the maintenance of our important medical and surgical research departments.

Volunteer Service

Every hospital annual report issued during recent years has emphasized the existing shortage of paid personnel and has paid tribute to volunteer services which have been historically developed since the entrance of the United States into the great world struggle. It is a justifiable duty and responsibility to point out that our Outpatient Department has been staffed with a large group of volunteer workers since the opening of the Hospital over 17 years ago. Many volunteers too have also been rendering service in the wards of the Hospital since 1928. The war has served but to broaden the field of activity in which our volunteers have participated. Without the men and women who have performed essential functions we could not have carried on. They have filled important gaps in the Outpatient Department, in the wards, in our dining rooms, in short, all over the institution.

During the past year 835 different volunteers served a total of approximately 68,000 hours. Two hundred and three of this group devoted 13,394 hours to outpatient service. In the main hospital 632 volunteers served a total of 53,724 hours. Included in this splendid and invaluable service were the activities of the male volunteers, who carried on the essential functions normally the responsibility of the trained orderly. The service of this group of approximately fifty men did much to contribute to the welfare of our patients.

To the 130 nurses' aides we pay tribute and testify to the value of their services, which did so much to alleviate suffering and to give aid.

A Resume of Hospital Activities

In the report for the previous fiscal year there was included a statistical picture of the varied services which the Hospital performed within the framework of its functions and responsibilities. Favorable reaction to this inclusion has prompted the publication of the following similar list which is presented for the approval, judgment and study of the readers of the annual report for the year 1945.

1. Six thousand two hundred and sixty (6,260) patients spent a total of 68,703 patient days in the institution.
2. Seven thousand six hundred and thirty-six (7,636) patients made a total of 42,443 visits to the Outpatient Department.
3. Four thousand two hundred and seventy-six (4,276) surgical operations were performed during the year.
4. Nine hundred and thirty-two (932) transfusions were given to patients admitted to the Hospital.
5. One thousand seventy-one (1,071) patients were served by the Medical Social Service Department.
6. Eight thousand six hundred and nine (8,609) patients were cared for by the X-Ray Department.
7. Eighty thousand two hundred and five (80,205) laboratory tests were performed.
8. Sixty thousand one hundred and thirty-two (60,132) prescriptions were filled by the Pharmacy.

9. Nineteen thousand and seventeen (19,017) diagnoses were catalogued by the Record Room and an additional total of 12,750 additional abstracts, charts and statements issued.

10. Approximately two thousand three hundred (2,300) books and magazines, English and Yiddish, were distributed to patients.

11. Approximately one hundred and forty-five (145) students were enrolled during the past year for nursing training.

12. Three hundred and eight (308) medical students received varied training at Beth Israel.

13. Thirty-three (33) interns and residents were the recipients of graduate medical education.

14. Fourteen (14) students received training in Dietetics.

15. Three students from the Simmons School of Social Work and Boston College received some of their medical social work training at Beth Israel.

16. Five hundred and fifty-eight thousand (558,000) meals were served at the Hospital during the year, or an average of over 1,500 a day.

17. Seven hundred and fifty thousand (750,000) pounds of laundry or approximately a million and a half (1,500,000) pieces of the same represented the production of the Laundry Department of the Hospital.

18. More than two thousand eight hundred (2,800) patients were referred to the Food Clinic of the Hospital for food guidance and for necessary health education.

This is but a partial list of the activities carried on. Professional and non-professional additional functions are difficult to catalog in terms of numbers. Medical and Surgical Research departments were engaged in various projects. The Maintenance Department concerned itself with the heating, lighting, repairs, and so forth, which do not lend themselves readily to statistics, and which entailed the use of many items.

Gazing into the Crystal Ball

Competition from industry creating a diminished availability of essential personnel compelled a marked increase in hospital wages and salaries. This increase has indeed been exceedingly large as compared with previous salary schedules, and has resulted in a marked acceleration of hospital costs. Influencing too the increased cost of operation have been the epochal discoveries of scientists which, while revolutionizing and making for improved care of the sick, have played an important part in increasing the cost of adequate care. This poses the serious question as to the responsibility for the financing of the constantly increasing costs of hospital care for those defined as the indigent and the medically indigent. Larger income from patients has been influenced by a period of comparative prosperity as well as by voluntary insurance plans of the Blue Cross type. The real problem is the care of those who cannot pay the whole or any part of their hospital bill or do not carry insurance to make this possible. The evident solution for us lies in the endowment, the income from which would furnish assurance of adequate funds to make the care of the indigent possible.

Good hospital care is appealing, as evidenced by the constantly increasing hospital occupancy, and it should be the objective of hospitals to make this adequate care readily available. If, however, such services are to be placed at the disposal of the public, it is important that financial provision for the conduct of such services be wisely anticipated.

Hospitals are faced with the task for the creation of enlarged opportunities for the returning medical veterans in order that they may obtain the necessary refresher courses which will bring them up to date with what is termed civilian medicine. This must be done, while at the same time the normal availability of assistant residencies and residencies continue for those who completed their internships. This imposes a double load and a necessary demand which can only be met by enlarged facilities. In the planning and conduct of this, Beth Israel will play its part with the other hospitals of the community in the meeting of their obligation through the medium of a well rounded and cooperative program.

It is proposed to meet the existing shortage of beds and to reduce the constantly large waiting list by the construction of a pavilion which will make provision for additional private and semi-private facilities as well as for an obstetrical unit. We are indebted to the Women's Auxiliary of the Beth Israel Hospital for funds with which to erect this proposed obstetrical unit, and to five generous benefactors who have made provision for funds for the already-mentioned private facility expansion. The proposed enlarged facilities will do more than just create additional beds for the care of patients, but will also mark the release of present existing space to be converted to meet essential needs. A most generous benefactor, too, is making possible urgently needed increased laboratory space for the conduct of medical and surgical research.

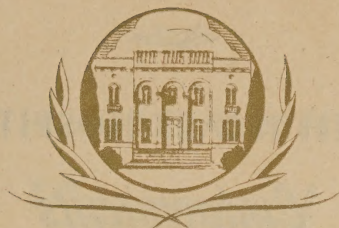

In Appreciation

Allusion has already been made to the part played by the paid personnel and by volunteers during the trying times we have experienced since the beginning of the war. One can afford to be repetitious in this expression of justifiable gratitude for the invaluable services they rendered. It is fitting, too, to pay particular tribute to the generous men and women of the community who have given so freely of their means in order that the hospital might be able to carry on and render the essential services in the varied fields which hospital activities embrace. Time can never dim our appreciation of the generosity of the already-mentioned benefactors who are making it possible for us to develop the necessary expansion of the institution. We are grateful beyond words to the President of the Hospital, to the chairmen and members of the Board, as well as to the President of the Women's Auxiliary and their officers and members for their constant and undivided support which has made the administration of the Hospital, even under most trying conditions, so very much easier. Their confidence in us has served to unite all in a common endeavor to service which we can only hope will reflect credit upon the institution.

The Hospital has sustained irreparable losses during 1945. In the death of Albert A. Ginzberg it lost a man who did more than anyone to make the new Beth Israel Hospital possible. His vision, persistence, devotion and tireless efforts were responsible for the foundation upon which this Hospital has endured. Joseph Finberg during his lifetime was an exemplar in its very finest form of the true humanitarian and philanthropist. Quietly and unobtrusively he gave to every worthwhile cause, irrespective of race, creed and color. He gave generously to Beth Israel from the day that he became interested in its welfare, and his great benefaction to this institution will do much to make it possible for us to solve the ills of many in the years to come. In the death of Dr. Abraham Rudy, the Hospital sustained the loss of an outstanding member of its staff. Motivated by a high sense of obligation, he set a pattern which might well serve as an example of what duty and professional responsibilities imply. May the record of achievement and devotion of these three great men serve as an inspiration to all who follow. To their families we express our heartfelt sympathy.

In good times and in bad, day in and day out, we must be ever mindful of our purpose and conscious of our responsibility for the better care of the patient, and for the satisfactory conduct of those other functions which a generous community has made possible. To every member of the Staff, to every Department Head, to every employee and volunteer worker who has shared in the continuing battle for better health, I offer my heartfelt thanks.

CHARLES F. WILINSKY, M.D.
